

Emergency Medical Responder Training

The Medical Response Training for Metis Settlements program (a partnership between the Metis Settlement Health Board and Alberta Health Services) is inviting Metis Settlement members (age 18+) to apply for Emergency Medical Responder (EMR) training.

About EMR Training

Emergency Medical Responders (also known as EMRs) are responsible for transporting ill or injured patients from scenes of emergency and/or between facilities. They operate ambulances, assess emergency scenes and patients, and provide treatments such as emergency medical care, ventilation or oxygen administration, and automated defibrillation. They complete and submit required documentation including patient care reports.

EMRs work for provincial, private, and industrial ambulance services and some firefighters are cross trained as EMRs.

To work as a licensed EMR, after completing the training, students will need to pass the Canadian Organization of Paramedic Regulators (COPR) exam and register with the Alberta College of Paramedics (ACoP). The COPR exam and ACoP registration costs are covered with this program.

Emergency Medical Responders play an important role as members of the Alberta Health Services inter-professional health care team. AHS will support students who complete the Emergency Medical Responder (EMR) training and licensing requirements, to apply for positions with AHS Emergency Medical Services (EMS).
